Congress says decline in real wages of workers in past 10 years, seeks minimum wage of Rs 400

NEW DELHI: Congress on Thursday said that multiple data sources, including government's own official statistics, show that "workers can buy less today than they could 10 years ago" and the Union Budget offers a chance to provide "justice to labourers" by guaranting a nationwide minimum wage of Rs 400 per day of work.

In a statement, party general secretary Jairam Ramesh said that multiple data sources, including the government's own official statistics, "are unanimous in showing that workers can buy less today than they could 10 years ago".

"A combination of slow wage growth and backbreaking inflation has caused an unprecedented decline in real wages (wages adjusted for price rise)," he said.

Referring to Labour
Bureau's Wage Rate Index, he said "real wages for labourers stagnated between 2014-2023, and in fact declined between 2019-2024".
